Lot #146 is Potter's Field. He attempted to cross the river on the logs, which was made somewhat difficult to do on account of pulp wood being mixed with the logs. Another man was crossing the river at the same time, but some little distance from Ellis. He saw Ellis, when near the shore, fall onto his knees on the logs. He called to him, when Ellis recovered and got on his feet again. The other man reached the shore and turned around only to see Ellis in the water struggling with the pulp wood. He reached a log and attempted to climb onto it but before the other man could reach him or render any assistance Ellis disappeared under the logs and wood and was not seen again until his body was recovered about an half hour later.
